DROPPED DEAD LAST SUNDAY

Esq. Thomas P. Dunning
Answered Death's Call
At 60 Years.

A FORMER MAGISTRATE.

Was in Town On Business
Friday and Apparently Better.

Without speaking a word to his wife who was on the rear porch, Mr. Thomas Dunning dropped dead at his home last Sunday morning at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Dunning lived in the neighborhood of old Bainbridge and was one of the best known men of the western portion of the county. Many years ago he was elected magistrate of his district. He had married his second wife, who is a daughter of Mr. Willis Johnson, who survives him. He leaves no children. It is supposed that heart trouble was the cause of Mr. Dunning's death. He had not been well for some time and had returned from Dawson not many days ago, apparently improved, and was in the city last Friday on business.

Sunday morning he arose early and was in an unusually jovial humor. After eating a hearty breakfast, he took a chair and went out on the back porch where Mrs. Dunning was busy with her household duties.

Mrs. Dunning happened to look toward her husband when she saw that something was wrong, as his head had dropped to one side and she caught him just in time to keep him from falling to the floor. He breathed his last in the arms of his wife.

As soon as possible Mrs. Dunning apprised the neighbors of the great sorrow that had come to her and the surprised friends of the deceased gathered to minister to the heart-broken wife and notify the undertaker of the need of his services. The burial took place Monday afternoon in the family burying ground on the premises.

SHOULDERS—GARDNER.

Trigg County Couple Married Here Yesterday.

Presley Shoulders and Miss Carrie Gardner, young people of Trigg county, were married at the Hill House yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. J. A. Kirtley performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Shoulders returned home on the 11:20 I. C. train.

Cured of Lung Trouble.

"It is now eleven years since I had a narrow escape from consumption," writes C. O. Floyd, a leading business man of Kershaw, S. C. "I had run down in weight to 135 pounds, and coughing was constant, both by day and by night. Finally I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and continued this for about six months, when my cough and lung trouble were entirely gone and I was restored to my normal weight, 170 pounds." Thousands of persons are healed every year. Guaranteed at R. C. Hardwick's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

CHAS. H. NASH, JR.,

Down With Typhoid Fever
At Temple, Texas.

The many friends of Chas. H. Nash, Jr., in Hopkinsville will regret to learn that he is quite ill at the home of his father in Texas. The Temple Tribune, of recent date, contained the following:

"Mr. Chas. H. Nash, Jr., is quite ill with typhoid fever, at the home of his parents in the First Baptist parsonage on North Main street. Reports covering his condition last evening were to the effect that he was very slightly improved at that time."

COUNTY INSTITUTE

Five Day's Session to Be Held Here Beginning Yesterday.

INSTRUCTORS HERE.

Will Be Best Ever Had,
Says Superintendent
Gray.

The pedagogues of the county, about 90 in number, will assemble here this week in attendance on the county white teachers' institute. Under the school law all public school teachers are required to attend. Organization was to be effected yesterday morning at 10 o'clock but owing to the heavy rains all over the county, only a few had been able to get here at the opening hour. Consequently the organization could not be effected until yesterday afternoon.

Prof. J. C. Willis, President of Louisville University, and Miss Avis Westcott, of Minneapolis, Minn., are to be the instructors. Prof. Willis failed to make railroad connection, and did not arrive until 10:08 yesterday morning. Prof. Willis conducted the institute last year and the year preceding. He is generally known as one of the best instructors in this part of the country.

Miss Westcott stands at the head of her profession in the Northwest. Her methods have met with general approval wherever she has put them into practice, and though it is possible that they may be new here, yet the results will doubtless be of great help to the teachers of Christian county.

No printed program has been prepared. Prof. Gray said yesterday that as his plans for the institute this year are all together different from those of any former institute, no regular program would be followed except as might be arranged after consultation with the instructors. The conduct of the institute by two instructors is an innovation, it is true, but, he said, he was going to have the best in all the history of the county. Heretofore in addition to the suggestions of the instructor different teachers had been assigned to discuss different lines of work in the schools. This year the instructors are to do all the instructing. Teachers will highly appreciate the privileges thus offered them and at the same time it relieves them of the necessity of preparation for properly handling the subjects assigned them. Many of them are young ladies who are unable to stand before a large gathering and speak with anything like fluency. A written argument never receives the attention it deserves. There are many young men also, who cannot better acquit themselves.

The expense of employing professional instructors, says Superintendent Gray, is borne by the teachers themselves, as they are taxed $2 each for the purpose. This being the case, Prof. Gray has determined that none but the best talent shall be employed.

The organization was begun yesterday by Prof. Gray, who made a brief address to his teachers, outlining to some extent his plans, and urging a faithful attendance on all the sessions of the institute. He believes that the teachers have great opportunities this week for acquiring information not obtained elsewhere, and it is a duty they owe to the children they are to instruct during the coming year to avail themselves of everything that presents itself during the five days of the institute. It is also a duty to themselves.

It is expected that at the roll-call this morning every teacher in the county who is physically able to reach the city will answer to the call.

ENTERTAINMENT

Tonight will be one of the best nights for the general public during the week. Mr. David Morrow Proudt, who has a reputation as one of the best general entertainers in the country has been engaged, and he will no doubt have a full house. His program is quite varied. In addition to being an artist as a violinist he is an elocutionist of a high order.

In order to meet the expense of putting this feature in the programs of the week the small admission fee of 25 cents will be charged.

DOLLAR WHEAT.

Daviess County Farmers Refuse to Sell For Less.

Owensboro, Ky., July 26.—The mills of this city can get no Daviess county wheat except an occasional load sold by some poor tenant. The growers are refusing to sell for less than $1 a bushel and the mills are getting the cereal from distant dealers. They began offering 89 cents and have gradually reduced the offer to 68 cents.

Heavy, impure blood makes a muddy, pimply complexion, headaches, nausea, indigestion. Thin blood makes you weak, pale, sickly. Burdock Blood Bitters make the blood rich, red, pure—restores perfect health.

CHANGE OF PROGRAM.

Great Trip on More Extended Scale.

Mr. W. A. Wilgus, tourist agent, has changed the date of his personally conducted tour, advertised for Aug. 6, having arranged a more extensive trip, and will leave here Wednesday, Sep. 4, for a seventeen days' outing. In addition to a trip to the Jamestown exposition New York and Washington he has added a trip to the Hudson to Albany thence to Buffalo, two days at Niagara Falls and Toronto, thence to Cleveland via Lake Erie, thence to Cincinnati and home. This is one of the best trips ever planned and the cost will only $115.00.

Little Boy Dead.

After brightening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Choats for two years, their little boy, who had never been strong, died last Friday afternoon. Mr. Choats lives on the Kirkmansville road, about ten miles from the city. Burial took place Saturday afternoon in the Hanby burying ground.

TERRY COAL & COKE CO.,
Hopkinsville, Ky.
GENTLEMEN:
Replying to your favor of the 14th instant, I unhesitatingly advise all consumers of coal to lay in a supply during the summer months and thereby avoid the inconvenience which must result on account of a shortage of cars next winter which in my opinion will be much more acute than was the shortage of last winter, unless the consumers lay in their coal supply as suggested.
You are at liberty to publish this in the interest of the producers and consumers of Coal.

Yours Very Truly,
C. C. McCHORD, Chairman,
R. R. Commission State of Ky.
The railroad and coal operating officials of Western Kentucky have given out the same official notice, and urge us to advise our stockholders, and customers to lay in their coal this summer.
Last winter's experience and high prices, together with the above warning, and we trust our people will take advantage of it and act at once.
We are ready to supply you with coal in car load lots over either R. R. any day "the best coal at summer time prices" and trust that you will give us your orders early while we can get the cars to ship in.

Emily's Legacy

By Carroll Watson Rankin

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles)

On one side of the street, in a little white cottage, lived Prof. Mason and his suburban daughter, Emily. Opposite, in the square, ugly brick house, where everything in the garden was planted in pairs, lived old Jacob Porter. Although Emily, almost 25, was the distinction of being the youngest person in the block; and the block was Emily's world.

All the neighbors loved her, but if crabbled old Jacob Porter felt any affection for her, he kept it well concealed. One other person also loved her. A serious-minded, straightforward young lawyer named John Farrell, whom Emily had known in her school days, had returned, after his studies, to the bar, to hunt out his shingle in a neighboring town and to court Emily, who, however, refused to take his mild attentions with a proper seriousness.

Contented Emily, whose time was pretty well occupied with her housekeeping, had just one ungratified longing; but that, after all, considering Emily's environment, was rather an ambitious one. She wanted not a husband, but a horse. She had no expectation of owning one—no one in the block except Mr. Porter had ever owned one.

"When my ship comes in," Emily would say, as she sat sedately on one of the block's doorsteps, "I shall have a beautiful horse with a flowing black tail—I've always loved horses. If I had one I would take the entire block to ride by turns. Poor Mrs. Miller hasn't been beyond her own gate since I can remember, and Mrs. Brown can't take long walks. Then poor father could go botanizing and butterflying to his heart's content. There's one thing certain, with this secret herd of mine I can't have a white horse—you know that was that when you see a white horse there's sure to be a red-headed girl in the neighborhood."

When Mr. Porter died suddenly in April, the neighborhood learned, with considerable astonishment, that the shabby old man was possessed of considerable property, and relatives to inherit it. There was one clause in his somewhat remarkable will that was of special interest to the block. He had left $436 and an ancient buggy to astounded Emily. She was, however, to have no choice in the spending of this legacy; with one dollar she was to purchase a trustworthy cookbook; with two hundred she was to procure hay and oats; with the remainder she was to purchase a good horse, and that without delay. Unless he animal was selected within a fortnight, she was to forfeit every link but the cookbook. This was eccentric Jacob Porter's way of making it certain that Emily's ship should reach port.

Mr. Brown, who had once possessed a cow and still owned a barn, advised Emily to advertise in the weekly paper for a likely young horse. This seemed sensible advice, and as soon as the will was probated and the legacy turned over Emily advertised.

The paper was issued Saturday morning, and the ink was not dry before answers to the advertisement began to arrive. Emily was called from the breakfast table to examine the first candidate, but one glance at the proffered steed was enough. "No," said Emily, to the man that stood on her doorstep, "I can't possibly buy a white horse."

The man glanced from Emily's glowing head to his spotlessly white property and, sheepishly and with a departed. He understood, for his own head was as red as Emily's.

John understood, too. "You see," Emily had explained to John the Sunday before, "I'd as soon think of getting married as to buy a white horse."

"Do think about it," John had urged, seizing the opportunity that Emily had inadvertently provided. "I'm doing so nicely now that there isn't any reason why we shouldn't be married—next October, for instance. I've been waiting all winter for you to give me a little encouragement."

"I'll give you a little now," demure Emily had returned, suddenly displaying the red dapple that John so loved to see. "When I buy a white horse I'll begin to think about matrimony."

Apparently all the horses in Mansfield were for sale. Before the first day was over, Emily had inspected 32 alleged likely young horses—four of which, however, rival horse dealers declared to be on the brink of dying of old age. Nineteen times that day Emily and the professor drove, or were driven around the block, but night found them still horseless.

The fortnight, as well as the legacy, was growing beautifully less. Horses continued to assemble at Emily's gate—all kinds but the kind she wanted.

The last day of the fortnight dawned. The owner of the white horse had never failed to appear at least once a day, but was as regularly turned away.

Just at sundown of that last day as fine a chestnut horse as Emily had ever seen was tied to the fence beside the alleyway. Emily, contrasting the two, felt a pang of dismay.

"Oh, you beauty!" she cried, running to the gate. "You're the prettiest thing, but of course I can't have you. You're probably a $100 horse. One hundred—how much is he?"

"One hundred, seventy-five," mumbled the man.

"Oh!" cried Emily, "do let me try him around the block. Mr. Brown, what do you think of him? Mr. Miller—father—don't you boys think he looks more like a horse than anything we've tried? Anyway, the time's almost up, and I'm just certain that this horse is all right."

The neighborhood was certain, too. Only Farrell was dissatisfied. His disappointment at Emily's latest choice was pitiful to see. Even Emily was presently tought by it.

"I had hoped," complained Farrell, "that you'd take the white horse. Now it's all over I don't mind confessing that I promised that man $50 extra if he'd sell you that beast. He assured me that he'd sell you a white horse if he had to let it to this day, and I was foolish enough to believe him."

"By the end of the week Emily, who had taken all her elderly neighbors, not he alone, but yet, paid with the utmost cheerfulness for her horse, for she still loved him.

One bright morning, three weeks later, the entire neighborhood turned out to inspect the horse. There was certainly something very much amiss, and the trouble, whatever it was, was visible from the outside.

"My eyes," quavered old Mr. Miller, "ain't good, but sure's I'm a-davin' that horse's coat looks green."

"I had him out in the rain yesterday," explained Emily, who had just added herself to the group.

Inspecting Emily's horse soon began to be the chief occupation of the neighborhood for a good while. He decided change of color was surely taking place in the animal. His former owner, who might have enlightened

"Cold Reception."

Emily, had quietly vanished and could not be found. The chestnut horse had been purchased in May; by the end of June he was undeniably a dirty bottle-green. By July he had become a mottled bottle-green, and John Farrell eyed him thoughtfully. A rainstorm early in August washed all exposed portions of the changeable horse. "My eyes," quavered old Mr. Miller, "ain't good, but sure's I'm a-davin' the truth dawned upon Emily—a horrible truth, because it shattered more than one idea.

She had, after all, purchased the white horse. The rascally horse-dealer, determined to earn the extra $50 offered by John, which, however, the culprit had not yet come and had used hard-ly, or something equally potent, to successfully disguise his colorless horse.

"Gless me, my dear," exclaimed the professor, who was driving Emily along a country road when this distressing knowledge, with all its dire consequences, finally burst in upon her. "I wouldn't cry about it. There isn't a horse with a better gait or a sweeter disposition in all Mansfield; if he ever gets thoroughly hatched, he'll—"

"It-it isn't the horse," sobbed Emily against her father's shoulder. "It—it's John Farrell. I'll never speak to him again as long as I live. Oh, I couldn't have believed it of him."

The next day was Sunday John appeared, as usual, and was genuinely surprised at the cold reception accorded him. It took him some time to convince the icy young woman who sat on the doorstep, with her chin held unnecessarily high and with a scarlet spot blazing indignantly in each pale cheek, that he had no hand in deceiving her, beyond making the solitary, unpremeditated offer of which he had already spoken, and for which place of carelessness he had supposed himself forgiven. The hair-dye, he assured her, was a complete surprise. Emily, gazing searchingly into Farrell's honest, indignant blue eyes, found it possible to believe him.

Once convinced of his trustworthiness, Emily was so relieved that she chuckled and asked that she was glad that she had bought the white horse.

"When," asked John, emboldened by the happiness in Emily's smile, "are you going to begin to think about it?"

"I've been thinking about it all day," confessed Emily, blushing an unbecoming pink that told its own story to even Emily.

"By the way," asked John, an hour later, "if that rascally horse-dealer ever turns up that that fifty, what had I better do about it?"

"Make it a hundred," breathed Emily, softly, but John was not too far away to catch the words.

Russia seems determined to find out for itself whether or not it is dangerous to sit on the safety valve.

The Young Physician

WHAT HIS EXPERIENCE PROVED.

In the early sixties it was usually the duty of a practicing physician to ride many miles every day on his regular rounds of visits upon his patients. In those days a young man who had received a splendid medical training in one of the best medical colleges of that day was accustomed to ride ten, twenty, thirty miles or more visiting the sick and afflicted. His success was soon phenomenal. Doctors and families called him for consultation to towns at considerable distances by rail. His specialty was the cure of those common and distressing diseases of women. He had early discovered that by combining the extracts of the following medicinal plants in just the right proportion, without the use of alcohol his "Prescription" almost invariably cured such cases. Later, in order to place this remedy before the public in a shape easily to be procured, he established a laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., where regularly qualified chemists were put in charge to accurately prepare his "Prescription" and put it in shape for shipment to all parts of the world. This remedy, which he named Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is not a "patent medicine" but a tonic and nervine for women, and a regular physician's prescription, and contains the following ingredients: Lady's Slipper root, Black

Cornish root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, China, Sial root, and chemically pure glycerine.

Dr. Pierce does not claim for his "Favorite Prescription" that it is a "cure-all." It is recommended as a most perfect remedy for women's ailments. It is a powerful invigorating tonic, improving health and strength in particular to the womb and its appendages. The use of this medicine will prove a permanent cure to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," run-down, or debilitated, especially for women who work in a factory or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will prove a priceless benefit because of its health-restoring and strength-giving power.

The "Prescription" was the great improvement in my health since taking your Favorite Prescription," says Mrs. H. B. Jones, of New York City. "I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having good health again. Could not sit up all day. I noted a great improvement before the first bottle was all used. Was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to, had inflammation of the ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' I felt like a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired."

Only one of two things, I think, could have cured me. I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having good health again. Could not sit up all day. Was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to, had inflammation of the ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. Lesson For "Night Riders."

"Experience," said the old adage, "is a dear school, but fools will learn in no other." Will it be necessary to write down the night riders, the men who destroy property and endanger life in disregard of law, as being fools in addition to being scoundrels?

In order that we may point a moral, allow us to tell a tale, unadorned and simple, a reminiscence of twenty-five years ago. At that time, a lawless organization known as "White Caps" infested the country. There were some of them in Western Kentucky and a great many in Southern Indiana. They committed outrage after outrage, and the leaders of the law never overtook them. They would fog men almost to death. They would force families to abandon their property and flee the country. Year after year, their depredations did not cease.

Near Leavenworth, on the line between Crawford and Harrison counties, in Indiana, lived a widow with her two sons. The sons had incurred the displeasure of the "White Caps," and notice was served upon them to leave the country. The widow's sons were obstinate young fellows, thick of head and strong of body, and disinclined to submit to dictation from any source. They declined to go.

A night or so after the serving of the notice, the widow's dogs were poisoned, and the boys knew that the following night they might expect the "White Caps." They put their mother into a skiff, rowed across to the Kentucky shore, and leaving her in the care of Meade county friends, returned to their homey cabin in the woods. They barricaded the doors and windows as though preparing to stand a siege, and it was a ruse. They did not remain in the house, but concealed themselves in the woods a short distance away and waited, their rifles ready in their hands.

The "White Caps" came, saw the barricaded doors and began an assault.

There is some catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constant failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only catarrh cure on the market. It is taken internally and in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has surpassed all other medicines in merit, sales and cures.

Its success, great as it has been, has apparently only just begun.

It has received by actual count more than 40,000 testimonials in two years.

It purifies the blood, cures all blood diseases, all humors and all eruptions.

It directs the stomach, creates an appetite and builds up the whole system. It cures that fretting feeling and makes the weak strong.

In usual liquid form or in chocolate tablets known as Sarsaparils, 100 doses $1.

sault on the house. While they were busily engaged, a battering down of the doors, some ransacking guard, the boys opened fire. In a few minutes a dozen dead "White Caps" strewn the ground around the widow's cabin in the woods. The boys crossed the river into Kentucky, negotiated a sale of their Indiana farm and remained in Meade county without molestation.

The raid, in which a dozen of their men bit the dust, was the last ever made by the "White Caps." The organization went to pieces, and Southern Indiana was rid of the worst band of ruffians that it ever knew.

This is merely a bit of ancient history, the history of an incident that caused a sensation at the time but which, of itself, is of no particular interest now. But its recital raises this interesting question: Will the "Night Riders," so loose of kin to the "White Caps," learn this lesson from history or will they wait to be taught in the costly school of experience? It is a lesson that, one way or the other, they must learn. They may scrape paint beds, burn barns, dynamite threshing machines, flog men who do not obey their commands, do all of these things with impunity for a long while, perhaps. But it is as certain as fate that one of these days, if they do not desist, they will run onto a man with the nerve and the determination to give them their own medicine in bigger doses.

The lesson is plainly written in the incident of the Leavenworth widow's sons. Will the "Night Riders" read it or will they wait for its repetition and their undoing?—Owensboro Messenger.

The lines between the Graingerites and Binghamites are becoming sharply defined in Louisville. The democratic party seems to be in great danger of a serious split. Both leaders are writing cards filled with personal charges.

Death of Child.

Mr. and Mrs. Crit Marquess, of the Hamby neighborhood, lost their little child, aged about one year, of cholera infantum, last Sunday. The burial took place in the Hamby burying ground Monday afternoon.

Wedded in a Spider's Web.

Lady Majory Bruce wore to the marriage alter the most unique and delicate bridal dress of the season; yea, of many seasons, for Cupid's arrows might be searched in vain for another example of a bride attired in a spider's web. Lord Alsbury gave his daughter away in this most original and very pretty creation.

The gown was of soft white tulle, and over the skirt was a silver spider's web, with a small silver spider in the center, symbolic of the story of the bride's ancestor, King Bruce. Two tiny pages in white satin breeches, scarlet waistcoats, and dark blue coats were the bride's sole attendants, while the bride-groom had as best man his brother, Lieutenant Binney, of the royal navy.

LATEST OUTRAGES

"On Shame's Infernal" Claiming Grounds, These Dead of Crime Are Spread."

Burn it Humphreys, of the Montgomery neighborhood, a poor man with the help of his family is trying to make a living on a small place. He raised a wheat crop as his principal dependence this season.

He engaged the services of James Gaines, who operates a threshing machine, to thresh it for him. On the morning Mr. Gaines was to go to the farm he found that the night riders had tacked a warning on his machine that if he threshed Humphreys' wheat the machine, which is a new one, would be destroyed. Mr. Gaines thereupon declined to thresh the wheat, which will probably rot in the field during the present wet spell.

Moseleys at Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen P. Moseley, of Roaring Spring, were attacked by a mob and wounded by shots fired into their bedroom, are recovering from their wounds. The mob was made up of three gangs of night riders. One gang of about 30 riding in buggies passed along the Pee Dee road at 10:30 and returned at 2:30. It is said that some of these were going towards Cadiz after daylight. Another gang came up the Linton road and the third gang were evidently from around Roaring Spring and adjacent territory. They are probably the same parties who obeyed "The will of the people" in the assaults made on Charlie Edwards, Nathan Hester and other citizens. It is said that Mr. and Mrs. Moseley received but little neighborly sympathy in the attempt on their lives. One pretty straight clue has been discovered, it is said, in regard to the two men who purchased two gallons of liquor for the consumption of the crowd, which had to be bought in Christian county.

Driven From State.

J. W. Barefield, of Montgomery, whose home was attacked by outlaws one night about three weeks ago, it is reported, is arranging to move this week to Arkansas, having been run out of Trigg county. It is believed that Barefield was whipped by the outlaws who shot into his house and forced him to come out and go with them. The supposition is that he was required to promise at that time to leave the county, in order to save his life. His deserted home stands as a monument to unpunished crime in Trigg county.

They Kept Quiet.

One night last week seven suspicious looking strangers arrived in town and spent the night at a local hotel. One of them asked to be assigned to a room near "them detectives" and the spokesman expressed a desire that all be assigned the same room. They were kept under surveillance, but proved to be harmless.

Case in Guthrie.

It is reported that a man named Lockett was assaulted and roughly handled in Guthrie Friday night by five men. The Kentuckian's informant said the man was whipped for "popping off his mouth too much" against the association. No arrests were made.

A Few Left.

We still have left about 40 copies of MEACHAM'S CITY DIRECTORY of Hopkinsville for 1907, which will be sold while they last at $1.00 each. A Deadlock.
O you, who lent the earthen,
O you, who ally the deer,
I fear a duel will be fought,
Unless you interfere!
Come forward, O you nimble all,
Come hot-foot from afar,
And settle this dispute between
"Doc" Long and "Teddy" R.

Do wolves kill caribou and elk
By biting through the chest?
Are black bears brave or are their hearts
By shrinking fear possessed?
Do rabbits wag their tails or not?
Do mountain-lions sing?
O, tell me, ye who know the woods,
Do tiger lilies sting?

By jumping o'er a basswood log,
Do porcupines play the possum?
I know that muskrats live on roots,
But do they chew the roots?
Do millers mill or butter files
Or caterpillars yow?
Do hummingbirds stay "hum" at night?
Are high-balls strike or tow?
Do storks bring babies from the wood?
Do robbers feel their armpits?

Do test-tales test up or down
And why are gutter-snipes?
O you, who lent the earthen,
Do pug dogs like a kiss
From lips all covered o'er with rouge?
Oh, can you tell me this?

Come, all you hunters of the wild,
Your expert knowledge bring;
Bring affidavits from the wolves
That they have done this thing!
Tub up your lore, rehearse your yarns
About the lynx and "law."
And settle this dispute between
"Doc" Long and "Teddy" R.

A Morning Episode.
It was Sunday morning in the suburbs. The young man had been awakened by a quarrel in the sparrow family that lived in the cornice of his flat-building.

Because he could not woo Morphew again, he got up, dressed and, striding his sister's bicycle, started for the park.

"Rip! Rippey! Biff!"
A city dog hurried out of the yard in time to see a young chap take a header into the sweetbrier bushes that fringed the walk.

He had forgotten to put on pantalon-guards and the gear had cut a liberal mouthful from the bottom of his left trousers-leg, throwing him headlong.

He swore softly as he dug around in the woodshed for the guards, but under the influence of morning ozone he recovered his spirits and pedaled along the boulevard buoyantly. The air was redolent of soft, subtle flavors that titillated the olfactory nerve and tingled delightfully in the lungs. Lilacs, violets, sweet-shrub buds, apple blossoms—all the odoriferous galaxy of spring aromatics—exhaled their sweet-smelling, balmy scents to charm the wayfarer.

Arriving at the park, he rolled along peacefully, so lost in a reverie of enjoyment that he almost ran into a decidedly pretty young woman, whose shrill scream of fright brought him back to himself and his surrounding with a jolt.

"Why, Mr. Brown! To think it is you who would thus ruthlessly ride over me with your juggernaut!" she looked at him reproachfully with mischief in her snapping eyes.

Her lips were tantalizingly like ripe cherries and had played havoc with his composure on equal grounds ere this—and now she was actually depicting upon his shattered forces with her eyes!

His tongue got into a twist, the color mounted his brow and he was making a bad mess of it when a happy thought struck him. He would loan her the bicycle. It belonged to his sister and was a drop frame. She could ride while he roared.

"Miss Stanton, I—I—beg your pardon! Here take this wheel—and a beautiful morning—smooth road—yard—"

He stopped suddenly! Her face had changed its witching contour to cold and injured rigidity. That he had greatly displeased her was evident, as she bowed stiffly and, passing into a by-path, walked proudly away.

Like one stunned he stood there immovable. Then his eye dropped to his right hand.

Horror! He had not only offered her the bicycle, but the pantalon-guards as well!

Moral—If red lips upset you, wear green goggles.

Dischords.
If silence is golden, that accounts for some people being broke all the time.

Crying is a good thing for any woman who feels like it.

Solomon may have been wise, but the idea of him having so many wives a damaging evidence.

When a man has passed forty, he should never try to learn over again to skate.

Frequently, before a girl is thirty, she will see marry a man who smokes. After thirty she would like to—sometimes.

The armless wonder in the circus never appeals strongly to the dumfounded ladies.

Why speak of hard work? Isn't all work hard?

The deaf and dumb language of the eyes manages to convey its meaning, all right.

These springless springs are annoying when you have the money with which to build a new house and cannot spend it on account of the weather.

State College of Kentucky, LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY.

THE STATE COLLEGE, of Kentucky offers the following courses, namely, Agricultural, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Mining Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Normal School, Classical and seven Scientific courses, each of which extends over four years and leads to the Bachelor's degree. Each course is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty, consisting of professors, assistant professors and instructors, numbers over fifty.

County appointees receive free tuition, privilege of residence in dormitories, fuel and lights and traveling expenses, if they remain ten consecutive months, or one collegiate year.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern. Military Science is fully provided for as required by Congress.

Graduates in the several courses of study readily find employment with liberal remuneration. The total number of matriculates last year was 901. Each department has a specialist at its head, with the necessary number of assistants.

Summer schools are provided for in Pedagogy, Engineering, and instruction in Science and the Liberal Arts. The young women find an excellent home, with board and lodging in Patterson Hall, which is well equipped with all modern conveniences, bath-rooms, hall for physical culture, at $3.00 per week. All the courses of study in the College are open to young women upon identical conditions with those applying to males.

The attendance upon the Normal School in connection with the Department of Education last year more than doubled that of any preceding year.

Three new buildings, namely, one for the department of Education, one for Agricultural Science, and a Library Hall, are in process of erection and will be completed early in the next collegiate year.

Kentucky's Governors

FREE

The First Time Their Pictures Have Ever Been Published.

FREE

The Evening Post has for several years endeavored to secure pictures of all Kentucky Governors and has at last succeeded in securing them through the assistance of the Kentucky State Historical Society.

In order to place these pictures in a permanent form, they have been arranged by a group in an up-to-date Atlas showing Kentucky with the latest census, pictures of all the presidents of the United States, rulers and Kings of all nations, steamship routes, statistical data, history of the Revolution, War, and late maps of the United States, Panama Canal, Eastern and Western Hemisphere, reports of the last three national censuses, and much other historical information.

This unique and valuable Atlas is FREE in ALL EVENING POST SUBSCRIBERS. It is not now a subscription and $2.00 for a full year subscription by mail or $2.00 for six months' subscription. Understand that these rates are by mail only and that the subscription price by carrier or agent is seven cents per week.

The Evening Post publishes six or more editions daily and the latest edition is sent to each reader according to the time that it will reach them.

The Evening Post is first in everything and has the most State news and best market reports.

Local Leaflets

We have heard nobody complaining of the scarcity of mosquitoes this summer.

The audience room of the enlarged Christian church, when completed, will seat 1,000 persons—the largest church auditorium in the city.

It was a little remarkable, but it is said that Reva E. H. Bull and A. C. Biddle were the only local ministers in the city Sunday.

The ladies go to prayer meeting without hats and some of the men want to go in their "shirt sleeves." What an innovation it would be, and how comfortable!

The Anti Saloon League of the state is preparing to hold an election in Fredonia in the early future. Frank Wannen, of Louisville, was to lecture there last Sunday.

Corrugating the street crossings is generally approved and will save many horses from dangerous falls and the owner for repairs on harness as well as the vehicle.

Next Monday, had the day not been changed to November, would be election day and watermelons would be ripe. The melon crop is at least two weeks behind time this year.

The time from the rising of the sun this morning to the setting thereof is 39 minutes shorter than on the first day of the month—and summer will soon be gone—only a month until September, and the lady-did says frost will not be unusually early.

Ollie James said at the Seelbach Hotel in Louisville that the other day that the next president of the United States would be nominated at Louisville. As the Falls city has not yet secured the Democratic convention, Big Ollie may be "a little premature" in his prediction.

Pembroke is getting more civilized every day. A laundry is the latest thing to be added to the business of the thriving little city. It will also be connected with the outside world by having telephonic connection by the home with this city. A list of 120 local subscribers had been called up to last Friday and the service is still in progress.

With the mercury at 105 at Monroe, Ala., and the temperature close to the century mark at Nashville Friday, those two cities had an ice famine. Fortunately our ice company is in such shape that a famine is almost an impossibility. And we can never have a water famine. The Monroe Ice Co. would not take advantage of the situation by advancing the price. The cause of the shortage at Nashville was the inability of the Home Ice Co. to man their plant with skilled labor.

BARBECUE POSTPONED. Discussion Among Tobacco Growers the Cause.

Nashville, Tenn., July 26.—A special dispatch received here tonight from Guthrie, Ky., announces that after a prolonged meeting today which is reported to have developed much friction, the executive committee of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association announced that the grand barbecue planned for September 21 has been indefinitely postponed. No explanation of the action was offered by the committee.

Senator Bob Taylor and former Senator Carmack, of Tennessee; Congressman John Wesley Gaines, former Congressman Joseph E. Washington, Congressman A. O. Stanley and many others had accepted invitations to attend the celebration. Plans had been made for the expenditure of $5,000, and the affair was to have been the greatest ever given by the 27,000 members of the association in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Stops itching instantly. Cures piles, eczema, salt rheum, tetter, itch, hives, herpes, scabies—Doan's Ointment. At any drug store.

Good Rain.

A good rain began to fall Sunday afternoon. It was just what the corn and tobacco crops needed and continued to fall during Sunday night and was general all over the county. What little tobacco was planted is doing finely, but some of it will have to hurry up to escape an early frost. The corn crop will probably be something over the average in yield. The grass and clover is doing well and the crop is one of the best ever produced in the county.

DIES AT HOT SPRINGS.

At Ten O'clock Last Night From Apoplectic Stroke.

Ashville, N. C. July 27.—United States Senator Pettus, of Alabama, aged eighty-eight, died tonight at 10 o'clock at Hot Springs, this state, from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy, with which he was seized at the breakfast table yesterday morning.

His entire body was paralyzed and he never recovered consciousness since that time.

Senator Pettus' daughter and his grandson, E. W. Pettus, Jr., reached Hot Springs an hour before the Senator's death, but he did not recognize them.

The death of Senator Pettus followed quickly after the death of his colleague from Alabama, Senator Morgan. Both were notable types of the old school of Southern statesmen; much alike in temperament, appearance, age and political convictions.

In age he outranged all of his senatorial associates. He became a member of the Senate March 4, 1897, and only recently was elected by the Alabama Legislature for another full term, which does not begin until March 4, 1909.

Ex-Governor Johnston has already been selected as his successor.

GREAT BALL GAME

Boston National League Team Coming to Central City August 7th.

It was advertised throughout Western Kentucky that the Boston National League Base Ball team would play at Central City the 6th of last April, but just before the team left its training quarters at Thomasville, Ga., one of its players, Harry Delann, died, and all of their southern exhibition were canceled so that the team could attend the funeral of their comrade. But Manager John T. May, of the Central City Athletic Association, met President George B. Dovy, of the Boston National League Base Ball Company at Cincinnati, when he played there a few weeks ago, and arranged for him to bring his team to Central City, Wednesday August 7th, and this high class base ball attraction will, without any kind of doubt, be seen there on that date.

This is an unprecedented affair in the history of ball. Never before did a big league team stop to play a game in a small town, or a large one, either, in this section of the country. Central City will enjoy the distinction of being the only town south of the Ohio River that ever played a National League team during the championship season and the people living in this section of Kentucky should not fail to avail themselves of this single opportunity to see such a big ball game. Arrangements will be made with the railroads for special rates and excursion trains for those who cannot be accommodated by the regular trains. The game will be called at 2:00 o'clock, p. m.

A. J. STOKES

Dies at His Home in Earlington.

Mr. A. J. Stokes, at one time a resident of this city, died at his home in Earlington Saturday of a complication of diseases, aged seventy years. He was a native of Trig county and was a prominent citizen, having served as councilman about eight years. He leaves a widow and nine children.

"Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is the best remedy for that often fatal disease—croup. Has been used with success in our family for eight years."—Mrs. L. Whiteacre, Buffalo, N. Y.

PUBLIC SALE

Of Real Estate and Personal Property.

On my farm, near Lafayette, Ky., on Tuesday, Aug. 6, I will sell at public outcry, the following personal property: Sixteen horses and mules, fifteen head of cattle, seventy-five hogs, four mowers, two hay rakes, two binders, three buggies and harness, four wagons and harness; single and double plows, shovels, riding and walking cultivators, corn planters, smoothing and disc harrows, tobacco prizer and other things needed to work three farms. Fifty tons of hay, household and kitchen furniture, including two pianos.

The three farms mentioned are for sale. Also six other small farms for sale. Sale begins at 9:30 a. m. Terms made known on day of sale. DR. J. A. SOUTHWALL, Herndon, Ky., R. F. D. No. 1.

A license was issued Saturday to D. A. Morgan and Miss L. J. Tucker, of the White Plains country. The wedding was scheduled to occur Sunday.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Will Have Two Delegates to N. I. C.

Among the list of delegates named by the governor from Kentucky to the National Irrigation Congress, to be held shortly at Sacramento, Cal., are the following from this county: J. R. Caudle, Julien, and Chas. E. Barker, Pembroke. There will be twelve delegates from the State.

For a mild, easy action of the bowels, a single dose of Doan's Regulants is enough. Treatment cures habitual constipation. 25 cents a box. Ask your druggist for them.

The fundamental principle of addition is that 1 and 1—2. Up-to-date this has never been discredited. But here we show proof that this is not always the case.

For instance a dollar deposited this morning, and another one this afternoon on the same account, ordinarily would at the end of the year mean $2.00. However, the sum on deposit one year from to-day would be $2.06.
